State of the Pueblo

Allan Bogutz, President

Spring has sprung. There is more pool use and there are more flowers around us and the smell of citrus blossoms permeate the air. How lucky we are to share this season.

There are some interesting reports elsewhere in this issue including an update on the roads progress and information on a possible new is, of course, strictly voluntary and not an official ally like to see happen. The hikers have been out they also get to choose the restaurant. Discovery been great.

As Spring emerges, we have new growth on many of our plants and trees and most are looking quite good, especially after the disastrous freezes of last winter. A number of neighbors have made substantial improvements in their front yards that have really made them look much better. In addition, some have been attentive to the lanes and trails behind our homes. Please inspect the areas behind your homes and try to wrestle them into shape. These lanes are owned by the homeowners who have the responsibility to keep them clear and clean. Where the lanes are shared, you are responsible to your property line, generally the middle of the lane. Many use these attractive, car-free lanes for strolls and to visit neighbors. Please be certain that there is at least 5-6 feet of clearance for walkers and be certain that there is at least 6 1/2 feet of clearance overhead. The thorns and branches of the trees in the lanes are really dangerous to eyes, particularly at night when they can't be seen. If you have a landscaping service, please let them know what needs to be done. The lanes can not be used

The new ADA approved pool rails are now in place on the steps at Adelita and Caballo pools and we hope that these will make access easier for us all. If you have any comments on these, please contact Jean Paine, the pools chair.

our landscaping and architecture chair.

Many of you may have received a solicitation letter from Arizona Sanitation to collect your garbage and recycling. They are not authorized to operate in our neighborhood. They have been advised by me that their trucks will not be permitted in our roads. Only Reliable Environmental Services (Robert Howe 400-0163) is authorized to operate within Catalina Pueblo.

As some of us plan to leave the Pueblo for the summer, please make certain that someone will be watching your home and let Connie Church know the dates to use for changes of address and other contact information.

Enjoy the beauty of the desert in this great season.

effort by some neighbors to assist some of the needy in our Greater Tucson community. This activity of the Association but one we would reand about enjoying not only the fantastic trails in the area but also making up the lost calories with lunches after the hikes. The choice of hiking locations is rotated among those who attend and of other parts of town and new restaurants has

The work on Adelita pool is done and the water is delightful. However, we have discovered a problem at Caballo pool. A tree has fallen against the back fence of the pool. It has damaged the brick pillar and metal fence by the back gate. The tree, vines and pyrocantha will need to be cleared from that area before the pillar, fence and back gate can be fixed. Work will begin on this project in the next week. In addition, the lamp posts at Caballo will be painted this year.

ADA compliant handrails are installed at both Adelita and Caballo.

Saguaro East Boardway Trailhead

Pueblo Plodders Catalina Pueblo Hiking group Yvonne Rolston - yvonnevictoria@gmail.com

The hiking group have had a month of gorgeous February hikes in various areas around Tucson, followed by equally satisfying lunches at restaurants in close proximity to each Trailhead. What we have gained in exercise, laughter and companionship, we have also in almost equal measure gained in pounds! Never mind, it's great fun! Each Thursday we have about 8-10 hardy souls venturing out on the trails of Tucson and we continue to welcome everyone able to walk over rough and uneven surfaces and occasional inclines to join us each Thursday morning at 8:30, outside the Adelita Pool.

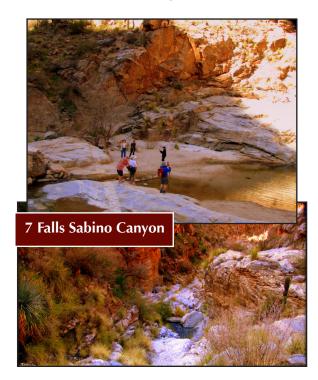

Roads Committee Donn Poll. Chair

Our contracted road engineer, John Wood of Presidio Engineering, is reviewing the proposals we collected from contractors to apply chip seal to our roads. He will recommend a contractor in March, and work will begin in early April. We will share contact information of the chosen contractor so home owners may arrange to have any work done on their driveways at the same time as the road work is being done.

An important note: Please trim back any plants growing out onto the road from your property. In order to apply a new coat of liquid tar and chip seal, we need access to the full width of pavement throughout the neighborhood (with the exception of Avenida de Posada, which is a county road). At its March 5 meeting the board will be asked to send notices to home owners who have not yet trimmed back plants. Before road work begins, if plants have not been trimmed, the association will be forced to do the work and assess the home owner for the expense. Thank you for your cooperation. (Contact roads chair Donn Poll if you have questions: donn@donnpoll.com or 612-805-5868)

Cousin Margaret's Irish Bread

4 cups flour

I cup sugar

5 teaspoons baking powder

1/2 teaspoon salt

I tablespoon caraway seeds

I tablespoon cumin seeds

I cup golden raisins (sultanas)

I cub currants

I to 11/2 cups of milk

I egg (beaten)

34 cup margarine, melted

Preheat the oven to 350°F. Heat the raisins and currants in water (and drain them) to soften. Mix the dry ingredients and add the raisins. Then add I cup milk, the egg and melted margarine – you may have to add a little more milk to make a stiff dough.

Turn dough onto the counter and knead to form cake to fit into a greased casserole or pan. (Pan or casserole should be about 2 to 3 inches high.) It will make two 8-inch round loaves or one 10-inch loaf. "Prick" the cake with a fork or knife before putting it in the oven.

Bake about 50 minutes or until golden on top, or tests done to the touch.

This is Cousin Margaret's recipe for Irish Bread. She isn't my cousin, though - she is the cousin of my friends Anne and Vance in Kittery Maine, and she lives in Ireland. But what makes this recipe perfect for our Southwest celebrations of St. Patrick, is the use of cumin! It is a great combination. And it makes great toast, especially when slathered with butter.

Pueblo Outreach Project

Yvonne Rolston - yvonnevictoria@gmail.com

In response to an urgent request for help for two particular families in financial crisis last Christmas, I wondered if our Catalina Pueblo community might undertake in small ways to support these two female-led families throughout the year. The women live in different parts of Tucson, have very different needs (not necessarily financial), do not know each other, but both are struggling and very worthy of our consideration. I have met both women.

Nancy Meister from the Pueblo, knows one family well and tells us the following by way of introduction:

"This family lives in a downtown barrio and has five children combined, ranging in age from seven to twenty-one. Both parents are disabled, Frank with polio and Janet with rheumatoid arthritis and therefore have limited incomes. Janet had to give up working as a hairdresser. They have been together for ten years. The three youngest children are seven, eight and thirteen. Janet is their aunt and she has legally adopted them since her niece could not care for them. Janet also has a twenty-one year old daughter who is at Pima College and lives at home. Frank has a son who is eighteen and two grandchildren who are ten and eleven whose parents are frequently out of work. These children also spend a lot of time with Janet and Frank.

"This couple is also very welcoming of other children from their barrio and are closely involved in the community in other ways. They have identified wanting a relationship with a "sister" community. They also would appreciate assistance with snacks and enrichment programs at school (sports and cultural activities etc that require extra money). They would also like to expose the kids to experiences such as a baseball game or a trip to the zoo."

A family friend and priest of the second family tells us:

"The second family in need of support is led by a dedicated Mom who recently lost her husband, a disabled veteran. This Mom works full time in a good job, but struggles month to month to meet rent, auto, food, medical and her student loan payments. The extended family, who depend on her as well, often need her help. They consist of a son, who is soon to graduate from a major U.S military academy, and two younger daughters who each have small children, as well as a recently graduated and working high school teenager whose goal is to soon attend a community college.

The basic challenge for this family is how to break or rise above the cycle of borderline poverty and to achieve some of the long-term goals of financial stability, family well being and independence. This Mom has identified an urgent need to get her car on the road (work purposes), and help in mentoring and companioning her through a network of financial and life decisions".

This is NOT an official Catalina Pueblo Board project, and no one will be required to participate. However considering the friendly cohesiveness of our neighborhood, I wondered if others would feel moved to join me in participating on an ongoing working group to learn more about the women and ways we can offer financial support, mentoring and friendship. I will be writing updates based on discussions with the women, for each newsletter under the title Pueblo Outreach Project. I am optimistic that we will be able to offer tax deductions for any financial contributions you might make.

If you are interested in pursuing this neighborly concept further, please come to 2561 E. Cerrada Adelita for refreshments on Sunday March 4, 3:00 PM. If this date does not suit but you would like more information, please email or call me as soon as possible.

With thanks in advance for your consideration.

Interpreting our CC&Rs: Our neighborhood CC&Rs allow us to experiment with whatever landscape and plants we please when working inside our garden walls. Outside our walls is a different matter. The latter is addressed by our CC&Rs:

- Use of boulders, rock groundcovers.

 Any crushed rock or decomposed granite used as groundcover must resemble native soil and rock both in color and material; no colored rock or stones shall be used.
- Plant materials. Plant materials in areas outside of patio walls shall be natural (no plastic or artificial), native or drought-tolerant. Any grass grown inside patios must be a pollen-free variety.

The text above is pretty straightforward as regards groundcovers; just match the color and material of native soil and rock and you are home free.

The text on plant materials – native or drought tolerant – is specific without providing guidance.

The intent of the native or drought-tolerant restriction is to preserve the look and scale of our desert foothills environment. This approach originated in the 1930s when Catalina Foothills Estate developer John Murphey wrote into the original overarching CC&Rs the meticulous preservation of the extraordinary desert thornscrub biome of the Catalina foothills. He forbade removal of native plant material from building lots except from the house footprint plus five feet around it. Beyond that, the natural garden-like thornscrub environment was to remain intact. Similarly, his primary architect Josias Joesler conformed his house designs to the rolling landscape, and used patios and porches as transition zones from untamed natural landscape to the domestic spaces. The preserved landscape was a key marketing tool for the developer.

Our houses, patios, porches, courtyards and landscape deliberately continued this tradition. By avoiding irrigation-reliant plants, we avoid plants that look wildly out of place in both foliage and scale. That said, the option of native or drought-tolerant gives an immense array of choices. The Sonoran Desert has the largest number of indigenous plants of any desert on the planet. If you prefer to use solely native plants, there are roughly 2,000 from which to choose!

The drought-tolerant phrase opens the way for hundreds, perhaps thousands more plants from other deserts and arid regions around the world. Be advised that some other deserts and aridregions are colder or hotter or more humid than ours, so plants introduced from those regions may die here, or merely survive but not thrive. Similarly, some desert plants originate along canyon creeks or oases, and from that natural water source attain a scale that would overwhelm our streetscapes, and would survive only with irrigation, giving an unnaturally out-of-place look. If one of those plants tugs at your heartstrings, save it for inside your patio walls.

Plants from other deserts and arid regions are capable of becoming invasive; some will escape and go wild, crowd out native plants, or starve natives of scarce nutrients. This deprives native wildlife of their habitat and food sources. Some plants from other arid places evolved to endure or flourish after fires, while our native Sonoran plants have no tolerance for fire; if they become invasive, they can become extremely dangerous and destructive fire hazards, threatening property, lives and native wildlife. Note that some desert vines can become a route for vermin to get into your garden or onto your roof; you may prefer them for inside your garden walls where you have more control. For any plant you choose from the generic non-native drought tolerant category, do your research thoroughly before purchasing and planting!

To help you with that research, we've prepared a list of plants, and links to additional lists. You are not restricted to using plants from this list, provided you choose plants that are either native or drought tolerant. The list is merely to get you started by identifying some plants that are both suited to our climate and available at regional nurseries. The list is by no means exhaustive; it is merely inspiration. Have fun learning about plants that will make your house look both like a welcoming home, and at home in its environment

To see the list, go online to our Catalina Pueblo website at: www.catalinapueblo.com.

March GARDEN CHORE SIDEBAR:

- After March 15, when new growth emerges, prune frost-damaged foliage and branches.
 Prune evergreen
- plants (if needed) just as new growth buds appear. Plant new
- perennials, shrubs, trees, annuals, and herbs.
- Plant spring annual flowers and vegetables
- Spread mulch under and around plants
- Plant new citrus trees within your garden walls.
- Feed roses, and deep water thrice weekly
- Last chance to plant seeds of cool weather herbs.
- Sow seeds or seedlings of summer herbs

Caballo Pool

The Acacia tree at Caballo Pool will be removed within the next two weeks.

Unfortunately, it and the pyracantha that is twined around it, has damaged both the iron pool gate and the brick wall.
